Dear Octopus Energy,

(addendum to complaint information already sent)

I am raising a formal complaint regarding the balance transferred from my previous supplier, Avro Energy, when my account was moved to Octopus.

The final Avro statement clearly shows the accounting convention used on the bill:

- Charges are shown as positive amounts (money owed to the supplier).
- Payments and credits are shown as negative amounts (money owed to the customer).

This is demonstrated on the statement itself where the energy charges appear as positive values and my payment appears as a negative value.

Using the figures shown on the Avro statement:

Previous balance: -£768.66
Energy charges: +£87.24
Payment received: -£269.03

Applying the same sign convention used on the bill:

-768.66
+87.24
-269.03
-----
= -950.45

This produces a net balance of -£950.45, meaning the account was in credit.

Negative values on the statement represent money owed to the customer. Therefore the final Avro balance clearly indicates that the account was in credit when the supplier collapsed and the account was transferred.

However this credit has never been properly reflected in my account with Octopus.

Octopus has never once shown this account with the corresponding credit balance owed to me. At most the balance appears to have been set to zero following my earlier complaint, but no reconciliation or explanation has ever been provided.

This issue has already been raised previously and should have been resolved at that time. It was not.

As a result I have spent approximately 13 hours investigating and reconstructing the account history in order to identify the error. At a reasonable administrative rate of £20 per hour this represents £260 of time wasted due to Octopus' failure to properly reconcile the transferred balance.

To resolve this complaint I require the following:

1. A full reconciliation showing how the Avro final statement balance was transferred into the Octopus opening balance.
2. Refund of the credit balance shown on the Avro statement.
3. Compensation of £260 for the time spent resolving an error that should have been corrected when first raised.
4. A formal complaint reference number for this issue, as none has yet been provided.

Please note that this matter was first raised previously and therefore the 8-week complaint period is already running.

If this matter is not resolved promptly I will refer it to the Energy Ombudsman.

Yours sincerely,

Mark Collins Cope
