London.

Dear Octopus Energy,

I am resending my complaints as I have not received any acknowledgement or response of any kind to my recent communication.

For clarity, this relates to multiple complaint emails previously sent, none of which have received an auto-reply, complaint reference, or confirmation of receipt.

Please confirm:

- That these complaints have now been received
- The complaint reference numberS (plural)
- That they are being formally logged and investigated

Given the lack of acknowledgement to date, I would appreciate confirmation of receipt within 48 hours.

My details are as follows:

Subject: Ongoing Formal Complaints

To: Octopus Energy <hello@octopus.energy>

Subject: Formal Complaint References – Octo.2026.3.1 / Octo.2026.3.2 / Octo.2026.3.3

Dear Octopus Energy Complaints Team,

I am writing to formally structure several ongoing issues on my account into clearly defined complaints so that each matter can be investigated and responded to properly.

Please treat the following as three separate complaints. Each has required significant time to investigate due to lack of clear explanation or coherent responses to previous correspondence.

Complaint Reference: Octo.2026.3.1 – Direct Debit Irregularities

This complaint concerns direct debit activity on the account, including money being taken when I had already indicated this should not occur.

Recent communication regarding this issue has been incomplete and difficult to follow. I have also received an automated message threatening payment action despite the existence of an ongoing dispute.

The fact that this communication is automated makes the situation more concerning, as customers may receive threatening messages while issues are actively under investigation.

Complaint Reference: Octo.2026.3.2 – Avro Balance Transfer

This complaint concerns the Avro balance transfer that appears on the account statement.

The entry records a balance transfer charge of £293.44. The treatment and explanation of this item are unclear and were not accompanied by any direct notification explaining the adjustment.

My understanding, based on the conventions used on energy statements and on documentation from the previous supplier, is that the Avro account was in credit, not in debt.

In previous correspondence Octopus has stated that it does not hold the detailed records from the previous supplier. If this is the case, it is unclear how Octopus can assert that the transferred balance represents a debt rather than the credit previously indicated.

I therefore require a clear explanation of:

- the balance received from Avro
- the basis on which the transferred balance was determined
- how the £293.44 entry was calculated and applied to my account

In addition, normal accounting practice requires that corrections to accounts do not remove or overwrite historical transactions, but instead appear as visible corrections or adjustments.

The current presentation of entries within the Octopus app appears to remove or obscure earlier items, making it appear as though the previous state of the account never existed. This is potentially misleading and makes it extremely difficult for customers to understand what has actually occurred.

A full explanation of the transfer and any subsequent corrections is therefore required.

Complaint Reference: Octo.2026.3.3 – Gas Usage Overestimation and Refund Calculation

This complaint concerns the earlier overestimation of gas usage and the resulting refund or adjustment.

Although I understand that some correction has been made, I have not received a clear explanation showing:

- the original estimated usage
- the corrected usage
- the calculation used to determine the refund or adjustment

A clear breakdown of these figures is required.

Additional Note – Previous Addendums

I have also sent addendums relating to these issues which have not been acknowledged or responded to. This lack of response has made it difficult to understand the current status of the complaints.

Because each of the above matters required separate investigation and correspondence on my part, they should *not be merged into a single complaint response***.

Please therefore respond to *each complaint reference individually***.

Yours sincerely,

Mark Collins-Cope

Hi Mark,

Please accept my apologies for the delay in communication regarding the issues you raised.

I can confirm that all your points have been logged. Due to how our system works we would be unable to open 3 complaints for the issues and would need to group these under a single collective reference number: #2043241 - however this would cover all 3 points raised.

I am currently working with our internal teams to investigate each point. I want to ensure I provide you with a thorough and satisfactory resolution rather than a rushed update, so I have set aside time over the coming days to collate a full response for you.

I will be back in touch as soon as I have a complete update from the team.

Kind Regards,
Connor A

Dear Octopus Energy,

Thank you for your response confirming that my complaint is being handled under a single reference.

For clarity, I have structured my complaint into distinct points, each supported by specific evidence and references. This has been done deliberately to ensure accuracy, traceability, and proper resolution of each issue.

While I understand your internal systems may consolidate matters under a single reference, how I structure and present my complaint is not a matter for your system to redefine. It is essential that each issue I have raised is addressed individually and substantively.

To avoid confusion:

- I will continue to use my structured format (Pxx / Xyy references) to ensure clarity.
- I am content to cross-reference your complaint reference alongside mine.
- However, responses must address each point separately and directly.
- Where responses conflate, omit, or do not clearly address specific points, I will return them for clarification and restructuring.

For ease of reference, my complaint is structured as follows:

1. Direct Debit Issues

- P01: Direct Debit increase (~£400) without clear justification
- P02: Direct Debit vs projected usage mismatch (September)

- P03: Unauthorised Direct Debit withdrawal

2. Previous Supplier (Avro) Balance

- P04: Incorrect or unverified balance transfer and resulting charges

3. Complaint Handling

- P05: Failures in complaint handling (lack of acknowledgement, incomplete responses, merging of distinct issues)

4. Refund / Account Balance Issues

- P06: Refund handling and account balance discrepancies

Each of the above points is supported by specific evidence, which I will continue to reference clearly.

This approach is intended to support efficient resolution and avoid ambiguity. It also ensures that no aspect of the complaint is overlooked.

I trust we can proceed on this basis in a cooperative and structured manner.

I look forward to your detailed response addressing each point raised.

Yours sincerely,
Mark Collins Cope
