Energy prices from January and what they mean for you

Dear Mark,

The Government recently announced some changes to the Energy Price Guarantee: the scheme put in place from October to cap energy prices in the crisis (although your bill will still vary based on how much you use).

The first change was a surprise: some Energy Price Guarantee rates are changing in January, because the Energy Price Guarantee is tied – imperfectly – to the Ofgem Price Cap.

The majority of changes are reasonably small, and where we can, we're absorbing rises and passing on reductions.

While the Energy Price Cap is increasing unit rates in your area, we're not passing this increase on, and your prices won't change in January.

There's a reminder of your current rates in this letter.

Our commitment to stand by our customers throughout the crisis is unchanged. You'll continue to receive your Octopus discounted standing charges – lower than any other large supplier – throughout the next price cap period.

If you're struggling with energy bills, please let us know via the contact details on this document. We'll review your situation and help you find financial support you're entitled to.

Yours sincerely,

Greg, James, Stuart, Rebecca, Jon, Tara, Mario & Pete
